THE OHIO DELEGATION. The Ohio delegation, which represents Miners at Work Can Turn Over $2,one of the biggest districts in the national organization, arrived yesterday afternoon, accompanied by National Vice President T. L. Lewis, District President W. W. Haskins and District Secretary George Savage. Vice President Lewis said the Ohio miners are not instructed and he does not know how they will vote President Haskins said he had not reviewed the situation and that the district delegates would have to caucus before deciding what action they will take in the convention. Secretary Savage said he was not prepared to say how the miners would vote. It has been previously announced that Ohio is against a general strike. The opinion expressed by delegates from that State verfied this announcement and it was further stated that the Ohio miners were anxious to vote against a strike in order to have the matter settled.

William Morgan, national board member from Ohio, came in yesterday afternoon from Clarksburg, W. Va., under the ban of a federal injunction. He is one of the men who was arrested with "Mother" lones for violating the injunction issued by Judge Jackson, of the Federal Court. He is now out on bond, but will appear before the judge next Thursday with the others arrested, to be sentenced or discharged. He was also one of the men who was nearly murdered in Fairmount recently while walking along the streets of the city. He said he thought the attitude of the West Virginia delegates would not be radical, and that they would accept whatever the convention decided to give Patrick Gildea, president of district No. 2 of the bituminous field of Pennsylvania, came in with his delegation late in the aftrnoon. He said the delegates are not instructed and are not decided as to how they will vote. The miners of that district are conservative, although they have recently had much trouble in adjusting their differences with the operators, and it is thought their vote will be for financial support rather than a sympathetic strike. ATTITUDE OF IOWA.

John P. Reese, president of the Iowa disfirst, one of the active men in the organization, like the others, is noncommittal, but says Iowa is with the national organization. "The miners of Iowa are working under contracts as satisfactory as in any district," said he, "and we would not break them unless it was the last resort. We are union men over there and are prepared to stay with the miners." Mr. Reese said the local and district treasuries are well fixed and that if money is needed it is available from his district at any time President Williams, of Michigan, said "We do not want to break any contracts, and that is the reason the miners of Michbgan refused to vote on the proposed settle ment made by the operators until after this convention. We did not want to bind ourselves by an agreement and then be called upon by the national convention to break it order to be on the safe side we dicided to postpone action until after the convention. If a general strike order is issued we will not be violating any contract to quit work, as we are already on strike and have been since the 1st of April. As soon as this convention is over we will settle our affairs at home. The delegates, I believe, are not Instructed, and I cannot say how they will

Such an assessment would mean an enormous revenue to the national organization, but when it is considered that there are 600,000 men, women and children in the anthracite field to feed, calculations must be based on big figures. It was figured last night that if all the bituminous miners averaged $10 a week, a conservative estimate, the revenue from this assessment would be $2,500,000 a month, an amount sufficient to keep the strikers. Many argued that they could be kept for much less, and it was said the Illinois miners had supported strikers in that State and won strikes men were on strike and half working. How-would necessarily be larger. The convention can only decide how far the miners will go into their purses to assist the anthracite strikers. Every officer and delegate said he would be willing to contribute money or strike if it is necessary to win a victory for the anthracite men, but they do not favor such a policy unless it is the last resort. W. D. Van Horn, who was president of the Indiana bituminous district for several years and is an active worker in the organization, said last night: "The miners of Indiana are all in favor of assisting the anthracite men, and if a general suspension of work-should be ordered and a day set to suspend work every man | Three Last Heats Taken by Alice Rusin the State would immediately lay down his pick without waiting for that day. oing coal into the anthracite market. It has been said that there would be no general strike unless the bituminous operators shipped coal into the strikers' competitive market. A different view seems to be taken now of the question, and instead of barring bituminous coal, the operators will be allowed to market all they can. It is cited that the miners never won a strike when they prohibited the operators from shipping coal into a competitive strike market, but, on the other hand, when they allowed them to sell all the union coal they could, the strike was soon terminated, because the operators controlling the market affected by the strike found themselves losing their

The fact that the miners will not likely consider curtailing the output of coal as a means of preventing the anthracite operators from supplying their markets, adds color to the belief that the miners may decide to throw the anthracite market open to the bltuminous operators. The plan of on Thursday and Friday; fresh to brisk limiting the output of coal was tried in District 2, of the bituminous field of Pennsylvania, since the anthracite strike begun, and, it is said, was not successful and and not so warm on Thursday; Friday failed to accomplish the purpose intended. Baron Dillon, jr., and Promise trotted the last five hundred feet heads apart, Nutbearer winning by a nose from Alice Russell. Alice Russell then took the next three heats in impressive fashion, shutting out Mary P. Leyburn in the seventh heat and thereby taking first and third money. Winfield Stratton was whipped from the five-eighths pole in the first heat of the 2:14 pace and won it by half a length. Rosebud won the next heat, coming like a flash the last quarter. will be exciting and much will depend on the outcome of the games. Cleveland is doing some tall hustling to climb up the American League ladder.

Chesbre failed to score a shutout yesterday but he only allowed Boston to score one run.

Columbus is now in fifth place. The Senators are having a furious toboggan slide. Milwaukee is now close to the Columbus team and another day may find the Senators another peg down the ladder.

WEATHER BAD FOR GOLF

GALE BLEW OVER THE GLENVIEW COURSE MOST OF WEDNESDAY.

Two Rounds of Eighteen Holes Each, Match Play, Concluded-Features of the Playing.

CHICAGO, July 16 .- Two rounds of eighteen holes each match play were played by the contestants for the amateur golf championship at Glenview to-day under weather conditions that could not have been worse. Notwithstanding the weather, which introduced more than usual of the element of luck in the game, there were few surprises in the results of to-day's play to golfers, who, as a rule, have shown the most consistent form, winning their way through both morning and afternoon

One result that caused considerable comment was the defeat of A. G. Lockwood, of Boston, by Dr. D. P. Fredericks, of Oil City. The latter's victory was earned, however, his play, in spite of the gale that blew nearly all day, being almost perfect. J. G. Thorp, the Harvard professor, was put out of the running in the morning by a youngster, Nathanial Moore, but the latter was defeated in the afternoon play by Walter Egan, the last year's runner up to Travis. Egan's play was very consistent. In fact, he is displaying greater steadiness than any of the younger Western players, and should he win to-morrow's hard contest with G. A. Ormiston, of Pittsburg, it is considered he will stand an excellent chance of reaching the finals, Ormiston's play, although he won both of to-day's contests, was far from equaling yesterday's high standard, even taking into consideration the unfavorable weather conditions. Notwithstanding this, he is still considered one of the most formidable contestants for championship honors. Two matches that will be watched with much interest to-morrow morning will be those between Travis and E. M. Byers, of Pittsburg, and Dr. L. I. Harban, of Columbia, and H. Chandler Egan, of Exmoor, The latter, in this morning's game to-day, made a medal score of 38 for the first nine holes, four strokes under bogey, and won the match at the twelfth hole, eight strokes under bogey. This score was made while the wind was blowing a gale, Egan showing a form that has seldom been equaled. His play fell off somewhat during the afternoon under slightly improved weather conditions, but he held the game safe from

Although Champion Travis did not display particularly good form, either in the morning or afternoon, yet his play was steady enough to strengthen the belief that he again will win the championship and that, too, without much difficulty. He won both morning and afternoon games almost as he pleased. This was due, in a measure, to the fallure of his opponents to take advantage of opportunities, but Travis apparently held his men cheaply and played carelessly at times. Young Byers, of Pittsburg, if he shall nament will, it is considered, give Travis the first test he has had and a large gallery probably will follow the two around the course. Few really good medal scores were made to-day. Chandler Egan's 38, Percy Pyne's and Dr. Frederick's 40 in their afternoon play the golf he has done so far in the tour-games, were the best. Most of the medal scores ran well over those figures. The Meteor First, but Not Winner.

DOVER, England, July 16.-Emperor William's schooner-yacht, Meteor III, was the first to arrive here in the race from the Island of Heligoland, Germany, for the Von Busch trophy, valued at 600 guineas, and two other prizes. The yachts started Monday last, but were becalmed in the North sea.

The Lasca was declared the winner on time allowance. The official time of the Meteor III was given at 1:53:13. She took 46 hours to cover 310 miles. The Meteor III allows the Navahoe and the Clara two hours; the Lasca three hours; the Comet, formerly the Meteor, four hours, and the
